tors O'Gorman and Reed to the White House, as already told in The Tribune, and make plain to them the folly of their present attitude. He will use moral peruasion of a strong character to make them subservient to the administration's wishes. Those best informed believe that t will be easier to "persuade" Senator Reed than it will be to scourge the New York Senator into line, because he has already clashed with the President on patronage.

Senator Hitchcock takes the view that te has nothing to lose by adopting defiant tactics, as Secretary Bryan is already controlling the patronage in Nebraska, He believes the cost of "insurging" will se small, as he was practically elected by both Republican and Democratic votes. He was a Harmon man in ante-convention times, and from the outset has made it slear that he does not favor the Wilson currency views.

His wife and younger son, Robert, six years old, were both sitting on the floor and in tears; John, the older son, was trying to comfort them. The room was stripped of clothes, furniture, paintings and all other valuables, even including the boy's savings bank, which had ontained $1 20. The thieves had apparentmade a clean hau!

Salisbury went at once to the West 100th street station, where the lieutenant on duty sent Policeman Wicksinn to investigate. He found that Miss Maude Pornell, the landlady, had left word that when the Salisburys paid their rent their property would be returned. The good woman, according to other tenants, had had a delivery wagon brought up in the afternoon pending the payment of the rent. Miss Pernell was not to be found last night. She is said to be a woman of much determination. A summons will be made out for her in the morning.

Salisbury was at one time a portrait painter of note, having painted the por traits of two Presidents and having sold several of his works to Carnegie.

Sir Edward Carson Thinks That May Yet Solve the Irish Problem.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] London, Sept. 29 .- Sir Edward Carson now states that the exclusion of Ulster from the Home Rule bill may yet prove to be the solution of the Irish problem. The Unionist papers here regard this as an important pronouncement, but it is absolutely certain that Redmond would never accept such a way out of the present deadlock as a settlement of the Nationalist claims. The Nationalists are the masters of the government, and they are standing out for their bargain for a Home Rule Astonishing Rumors Current parliament in Dublin, with an executive responsible to it. That is the insurmountable barrier between the parries, and until it is removed the prospect of a compromise is very remote.

Ulster will never accept a part in a conference which begins by conceding the principle of a Home Rule parliament and an executive responsible to it. and Redmond has made it clear that the Nationalists will not go into a conference where the principle of Home Rule is put into the melting pot.

Redmond might be willing to allow Uister some scheme of local autonomy so long as the supreme control rested in the Dublin government, but Ulster is in no mood to accept such a solution of the difficulty.
